THE CAUCUS ACTS

AND AGREES UPON FINANCIAL LEGISLATION.

NEW RULE IS TO BE ADOPTED.

Which Debate in the Senate Can Be Stifled—The President Again Urges
His Little Petty Scheme.

WASHINGTON, December 17.-[Special.]m and a western anti-force bill senator, re ed in these dispatches a few days ago, in ported in these dispatches a few days ago, in which Mr. Harrison said if the force bill was not passed he would positively decline to accomplished made in the passed by t sept a renomination, has accomplished much in crystallizing the republican senatorial oppoion to the infamous bill. If the president is pised by any set of men in the world, it is the republican senators, and more than half them would be glad to defeat the force bill or no other purpose than to shelve the dimintive but bigoted partisan in the white house. TALKING WITH THE PRESIDENT.

Today three western senators and an eastern one were at the white house. Mr. Harrison is cranky on the force bill, and although he dis-cussed the financial question awhile, he would every few moments divert to the force bill, and he stated emphatically that any senator who stempted by any means to shelve the force bill would expect no favors of any kind from the administration. As usual he became excited, and threatened dire vengeance if the force bill was not passed, repeating his threat party could go to the dogs for all he cared if the bill was defeated. CHANGE THE RULES.

He was asked by a westerner how it could "Change the rules," he replied.

"But who will do it," was asked.

"If there is no republican in the senate conrageous enough to do it, then I think it

Then he demanded that the caucus should de not only to pass a financial bill, but the ce bill, and that a method to accomplish end should be devised and decided upon.

They Flop Together.
The two wings of the republican party in the senate flopped right squarely together to-

They agreed upon a financial measure and on a cloture rule. The latter is what hurts, I. It certainly means that a vote can be sched if the republicans of the senate have to nerve to adopt the rule when it is reported, lowever, the chances are there will be diffiy in finding a senator who will be willing sield the gavel in the face of democratic position and demands to talk when the echange the rules is certain to be reported, financial bill is passed, the chances are exciting moment will not be reached after Christmas, and by that time democrats may concoct some scheme by sich to prevent the republicans from outrules. Again there might possibly bough westerners known now to oppose bill, who will absent themselves without

The basis was the adoption of the financial thene reported by the caucus committee, with the exception of the 2 per cent bond projet, which was eliminated. So the measure will provide for the purchase of 12,000,000 of silver bullion surplus; a reduction of the compulsory requirements of bond deposits by antional banks; the extension of the national both circulation to the full amount of their bood deposits; the replacement of the defimilion purchases; a provision for the free mage when silver is maintained at par for me year; a provision for a charge on the con-

Mr. Hoar—Will the senator agree upon a time?

Mr. Cockrell—Not now.

The senate resumed consideration of the election bill, Mr. Dolph continuing his speech of yesterday. None of the provisions of the bill, he said were objectionable to him as transcending the power of congress; some of the provisions, he thought, might be improved but he had not felt justified in offering amendments. His principal criticism of it was that under section 2, the law was only to be put into operation on the presentation of petitions signed by persons claiming to be citizens of the United States. Judging from what occurred at the south—the killing, from what occurred at the south—the killing, beating or driving from the country of both white and black republicans—that provision would be in such imminent peril as to prevent colored wen significant and particular to the province of th would be in such imminent peril as to prevent colored men signing such petitions.

Mr. Morgan took the floor and quoted a clause from the constitution of Oregon, restricting suffrage to white citizens, and a section from the statutes of that state prohibiting the intermarriage of whites and negroes, Indians or Chinese, and he closed with an exhortation against hypocrisy.

Mr. Gibson gave notice of an amendment that nothing in the bill should authorize interference with elections for state officers, legislature, executive or judicial.

Mr. Kenna then took the floor and resumed his argument against the election bill. He de-

Mr. Kenna then took the floor and resumed his argument against the election bill. He denounced John I. Davenport as a man who had haunted the capitol for weeks and months, by day and by night, and whose presence had poisoned the atmosphere which surrounded the senate. And yet, he said, the declared and acknowledged policy of the bill was to bestow a life office on a man who, by the stroke of his pen, could arrest a thousand freemen; on a man, who by his single will, could turn half of the inhabitants of the city of New York into Bastiles. He said he would offer an amendment placing the appointment of election officers under the civil service rules.

Mr. Reagan next addressed the senate in opposition to the bill. He said that he had already given notice of twenty-seven amendments which he proposed to offer when the bill came up for consideration by sections. He argued that the vast machinery of partisan mercenaries, provided by the bill, would do more to debauch voters, corrupt the ballot and defeat the will of the people than had ever been done at elections held by state officers under state laws. The great calamities that would follow its energiate and any appropriate the provided by the provided by the provided and any appropriate the provided by the provided its enactment would be understood and ap-preciated by all who had experienced the horrors of reconstruction.

Mr. Butler was the next senator to speak against the bill. "It was framed," he said, "on the distrust of the people. It was a slap in the face of every state in the union."

Mr. Coke obtained the floor at 5 o'clock, and uggested that he would prefer not to go to late an hour.

Mr. Hoar again endeavored to extract from

Mr. Hoar again endeavored to extract from democratic senators the mention of some specific time—any time, no matter when—for taking a vote on the pending bill.

Mr. Gorman remarked that the senate was only on the threshold of debate on the bill. There were quite a number of senators on both sides of the senate who desired to speak upon it. It had been expected, however, that within a day or two important financial measures would be brought before the senate and he supposed that then the senator from Massachusetts himself would move to postpone the election bill.

DENVER, December 17.—A news courier from the camp near Daley's ranch, has the following from Rapid City: lowing from Rapid City:

A ranchero has just arrived in great haste to our commanding officer, and reports that a command of cavalry was attacked and two officers and fifty men killed, but the Indians were repulsed with heavy losses. The number of Indians killed is not known. The Indians were put to rout. This report is probably credited. It is not known which command it was—probably that of Major Tupper, of the Sixth Cavalry, and his three troops of 140 men. Our command marches to their assistance at once.

THE REPORT DISCREDITED.

WASHINGTON, December 17.—No information has been received at the war department in regard to the fight reported from Denver in which two officers and tifty men are said to have been killed. The report is discredited at RAILROAD TRAVEL MUCH IMPEDED. The Snow Three or Four Feet Deep Drifts-Several Accidents Caused by Roofs Falling In.

NEW YORK, December 17 .- The top of Daly's theater, at Thirtieth street and Bread-way, and two lamps in front of the theater, were blown down by the high wind today. One man was injured and taken to the hospital. One of the iron smokestacks on the postoffice (building, connecting with the boiler chimney, was blown down this after noen and went crashing through the glass ceiling over the mailing room, injuring quite severely John J. Mahony, a letter carrier. One other employe was slightly hurt.

The storm today has seriously interfered with river and harbor business. Several canal and smaller boats sunk at the piers in both North and East rivers, and the high tide and gale have combined to make it difficult for ferry boats to run into their slips safely.

The Liberty island boat is not running today. Many of the outgoing passenger steamers which were to have sailed today, are at anchor

THE DANGEROUS WIRES. PITTSBURG, Pa., December 17.-The snowfall today is the heaviest in several years. The wires are down all over Pittsburg, Allegheny and Birmingham. Horses were killed and sev eral men badly injured this morning by contact with electric light wires. The situation is so desperate that the department of public safety has ordered all the electric street car lines to stop running for the present.

There has been a tremendous snowfall in the Allegheny mountains, and at Bedford it is one and a half feet deep on a level. Railroad wires are down and there is much anxiety for fear of accidents.

RAILROADS BLOCKADED

The Pittsburg and Western is snowed up completely. No freight trains whatever were unning on any roads, and the passenger trains that straggled through were late from one to six hours. Business in the city is almost entirely suspended, an example being the fact that no quotations were posted at the pe-troleum exchange during the day, owing to lack of telegraphic communications. Police patrol that straggled through were late from one to of telegraphic communications. Police patrol and fire alarm system of wires are badly crippled, and the switch board at the city hall was burned out this morning. The electric light wires were prostrated early in the day, and those dependent when they are wither. and those dependent upon them are without light. WILL TEST THE LAW.

The Scheme of Ex-Senator Tabor and Other Millionaires.

Chicago, December 17.—A special dispatch from Denver, Colo., says: David H. Moffatt, ex-Senator Tabor and other millionaire mining men, have decided upon a bold step to test the question of free coinage of silver under the present law. Arrangements have been made for an agent of Senator Tabor to have ready a bar of silver containing 1,000 ounces, accompanied by a certificate of its fineness from the mint. This will be presented at the treasury department at Washington, and the demand made that it be exchanged for coin. The demand will, of course, be refused, when a writ of mandamus will be obtained from the United States court, and the matter will become ground for a legal battle. The theory of this action is that the law and ts interpretation are unconstitutional, and that ts interpretation are unconstitutional, and that he government has the right to refuse coin for bullion.

ALL ABOUT PARNELL

AND THE EXCITING TIMES IN

SPEAKING FROM A HOTEL WINDOW, With His Head Bandaged on Account of the Bruises He Received in the Riot.

DUBLIN, December 17 .- Though Mr. Parnell suffered intense pain from the effects of the lime thrown in his eyes at Castle Comer yesterday, he was able at midnight to address from a window of the Victoria hotel at Kilkenny, a large crowd that gathered about the hotel when the misfortune that had befallen him became generally known.

During the address his face was covered with bandages. He detailed the events of the day, and the crowd became exasperate at the manner in which he had been treated and many threats of vengeance were made. This morning Parnell's breakfast was served to him in bed. A close examination of his eyes revealed the fact that his sight is not injured. The surgeon in attendance upon him fears, however, that inflammation may set in. He has ordered that Parnell keep his eyes closed, and that hot water foments be constantly applied to them. It is not likely that he will be allowed to leave his room today.

Mr. Parnell's eyes have become inflamed, and he is confined to a darkened room.

Owing to the crisis in the tenant's defense fund, collections have been suspended in Cork and Limerick.

A new paper appeared here today under the title of "The Insuppressible." The prospectus of The Irish National Press was also issued. It states that the object of the publishers is to issue a new Dublin daily paper that will repre-sent national interests, which, it says, are jeopardized by the work of an organ giving independent expression to the political convictions of the Irish people. CHARGES AGAINST PARNELL.

Mr. Labouchere, in a speech at Stratford today, declared that the London torries paid Parnell's election expenses in 1885. He added that if he was challenged to do sp. he could bring forward abundant proof of the truth of his statement.

the charges that have been made in reference to the fund of £40,000 that was raised several years ago for his benefit. Parnell said that he would have preferred to remain silent on the subject, but the question having been raised, it was not improper that the public should learn the truth.

He said: "It is absolutely false that I spent the money on personal matters in England. I spent it among the workmen of Wicklow, giving 200 men employment in the mines and quarries. This work is likely to be permanent, for only today I have heard that a search for a continuation of the great lode of magnetic iron, which was worked 200 years ago, has proved successful.

At the depth of 100 feet a solid lode, thirty feet wide, yielding 60 per cent of metallic iron ore and 10 per cent of manganese has been discovered. The lode is proving to be of the highest quality and will insure active competition in England and Scotland. I hope eventually to smelt it at home. I also hope, when I have the power, to connect by railway the Kilkenny coalfields with the iron mines in west of county Wicklow, which can be largely developed. In this way I will be be largely developed. In this way I will be able to open up important industries which will give employment to a large number of men at increased wages."

Mr. Parnell also referred to the possible development of the coal and fron fields in Roscommon, Tyrone and Antrim, which would give Ireland a great industrial future.

give Ireland a great industrial future.

PARNELL TO THE HILLSDE MEN.

Parnell has issued a strong appeal to the hillside men, calling on them not to submit to English dictation. In this he says:

Will you, countrymen of Grattan, volunteers of O'Connell, Davis and Wolf; sons of the gallant Father Murphy, who fought and bled for the independence of our country; will you, inspired by the memories of the past, abandon your chief?

Will you give him to the Saxon wolves that are howling for his destruction? Or will you rally around him, as your fathers did around the men of '98, and shout with a thousand voices, 'No surrender. Hurrah for Parnell, leader of the independent Irish party! Down with the faction that would make the Irish people servants of foreign powers. 'Gather, men of the hillsides, at Johnswell on Sunday around your chief and hurl defiance at his enemies and the enemies of your race.

JUDGE FORT'S APPOINTMENT. The Applicants for His Place in the Judge

AMERICUS, Ga., December 17.—[Special.]—
The news of the appointment of Judge Allen
Fort as railroad commissioner, which came to day, while not unexpected, was no less the cause of great satisfaction to the people of Americus. Apart from the high estimate in which Judge Fort is held as a lawyer and a legiswhich Judge Fort is held as a lawyer and a legislator, the people of southwest Georgia have long felt that his services to the state in establishing the commission were too eminent to be longer overlooked by the governor in filling the board, and while the position is one of great honor, Judge Fort's friends feel that no man in Georgia has so good a claim to the recognition which Governor Northen has so justly given. The only source of regret in the matter 40 Americus, is that Judge Fort will remove to Atlanta when he assumes the duties of his position and Americus will then lose one of her best and most distinguished citizens. So confident have the people felt for some days of Judge Fort's appointment that an active canvass has been inaugurated by the friends of numerous lawyers who are to become candidates for the succession to the judgeship of the southwestern circuit to become vacant upon Judge Fort's resignation. The names of the following able lawyers are already before the public: Colonel Eugene A. Hawkins, son of the late Judge Willis A. Hawkins; ex-Senator W. M. Hawkes, ex-Judge Joseph A. Ansley, of Americus; Colonel W. H. Fish, of Oglethorpe; Colonel R. F. Watts, of Lumpkin, and Colonel G. W. Marwick. As there are three prospective candidates from Americus, the bar here think it advisable to take some action looking to the cencentration of the local support upon one man, the better to insure his election, and sumay be the course of events. lator, the people of southwest Georgia have long

ECONOMIZING THE FUEL. Americus Finds Herself Likely to Run Out of Coal. *

AMERICUS, Ga., December 17.—[Special.]— The Americus Light and Power Company furnishes electric lights for the city, and also power for the Americus Streetrailway. Owing to the scarcity of steam coal here, and the great uncertainty of keeping supplied, the Light and Power Company found itself con-fronted with the danger of having to shut down altogether, unless fuel was economized. At a joint meeting of the boards of the Light and Power Company and the Street Light and Power Company and the Street Railroad Company tonight it was determined to run only at night to light the city, and suspend the operation of the street railway for thirty days, or until the coal strike question is settled. In the meantline an effort will be made to provide fuel from other sources so that operations can be resumed whether the coal mines are worked or not. They wisely determined not to risk the shutting off of the electric lighting merely to keep the cars running, and Americus can foot it for a few days to prevent the danger of the city being kept in darkness.

A DYING MAN TALKS

SINGULAR INCIDENT IN THE

The Judge and Jury Repair to the Room of Recital of the Conspiracy.

Macon, Ga., December 17.—[Special.]—Lem Burch's confession is now in evidence. It was made this morning, and under very unusual circumstances. It places the stigms murder on the prisoners now under trial, Something not often, if ever, witnessed in the trial of a case in this country, transpired this morning in the great conspiracy trial.

A court in session in the bed chamber of a dying man is a sight never before seen in the things brought out there are not calculated to add much weight to the side of the defense. This morning at 9 o'clock, when court convened, the first witness called was Lem Burch. As is well known, Burch lies at the point of death in a boarding house in this city. He is suffering with a recent stroke of paralysis; but besides this, pneumonia has fastened its fangs on him to add to his miseries and to haster his end. In this condition he now lies, and death, it seems, is not far off. He realizes the near approach and says he has been trying, as best he may, to prepare for the fell stroke. When Burch's name was called in court this morning it was unced that he was absent.

Court will then adjourn to where he is," said Judge Speer, and a short while later the federal court, with all its officers, prisoners, jury, and counsel on both sides, were seated in a room where lay in a bed near by, the witness to be examined, and the most important witness in the case.

When the court entered the room the man's face assumed a frightful expression, and his eyes turned toward the crowd as if pleading for mercy.

Court was at once called to order, and immediately the examination of Burch began. In a feeble voice he made a statement of the crime, pausing now and then to cough up the phlegm that continually filled his throat. His pitful condition and the sorrowful, pleading tones of his veice added increased weight to the story he was telling.

HE CONFESSES ALL.

Without hesitation, and as if glad to relieve his soul of the weight of the terrible story of the crime, he went ahead telling how it was brought about and how the horrible work was

His statement was in substance what was related in today's Constitution. He related how he was approached by Lancaster and asked to take charge of its work. He was threatened into it and was told that he could count on $600 for paying for it. He was furnished a pal in the person of Clemens, who was to assist in anything that might be done. They went to work at once and in a few days had secured the man for the work. This man was Richard Lowrey, a mulatto. The negro agreed to kill Captain Forsyth, but neither the negro nor Clemens knew him, and, said Burch, "I took Clemens to Eastman and showed him the man. He returned home and then began planing for His statement was in substance what was rereturned home and then began planing for the work."

Continuing, Burch said October 7th was selected as the night for the murder. He had agreed to stand by the men and give them shelter after the deed was committed. On the afternoon of that fatal day, Burch says, Clemeta and Lowrey left his home to go to Forsyth's. They returned and reported their work well done. But they were afraid to remain there long, ann as soon as possible both left and hid themselves in the swamp. Burch promised to take them money and clothes. But the money was not forthcoming as he expected. Burch says he took a small amount of money and clothes to the fugitives the next day. Burch says he took as small amount of money as promised and so he was forced to borrow it. He paid the arrears, in all about $300. The above is about the substance of the story told by the dying murderer. He was questioned over and over again, and notwithstanding his weakened condition, he pulled through a most rigid examination. At about 1:30 o'clock at the same place. The afternoon session was wanted in order to go through a cross-examination. During the entire examination the other prisoners remained unmoved. All of them were present and the recital of the bloody deed failed to make them quiver in the least and they remained through-out as impassive as stone, feeling, perhaps. quiver in the least and they remained through-out as impassive as stone, feeling, perhaps, less moved than were the others who heard the sickening and horrible narrative.

Promptly at 2:30 o'clock the court was again

nsession to go through with the cross-examination of the witness.

At this, as at the morning session, he appeared almost too ill to talk, but with an effort he pulled himself together and went through the examination.

The examination was again a most rigid one. The witness was subjected to such questions that it would be supposed that he would easily fall into the many traps so skilfully preparen, Notwithstanding this, that he had made from the beginning. His he stuck squarely out in the statement. he stuck squarely out in the statement confession, of course, will have to have a certain amount of corroboration to be considered by the jury, but if the facts brought out in it are true, there is no punishment too great for the men who had a hand in that vile and cowardly exacts in the second of the second ardly assassination.

If they are true, there are laws in Georgia that will revenge that horrible murder; the assassins of brave Captain Forsyth will be made to suffer.

CRAWFORDVILLE'S COLLEGE.

A Strong Argument Why the Town Ought to Have a College.

Mr. Horace Holden, a prominent attorney, of Crawfordville, is in Atlanta. He is here to speak a word in behalf of the busy and historic little city of Crawfordville, in the matter of securing a branch college for busy and historic little city of Crawfordville, in the matter of securing a branch college for the University of Georgia.

"The citizens of my town have held a meeting," said Mr. Holden last night, "and they are willing to do a very groat deal for a college if the state will put one there. The trustees of the Stephens High school will give the handsome building and the grounds to the state and the Stephens' Monumental Association will give the old Stephens homestead along with it, and it does seem to me that this would be a splendid opportunity for Georgia to show her regard for the memory of her honored son by putting an educational institution there under such consideration.

"Stephens was not only one of the most valuable statesmen Georgia ever had, but was vice president of the confederacy, and was a great friend to education, having sent more than fifty boys to college during his life and died poor from the expense."

A branch college at Crawfordville would certainly be a fit monument erected by the state for the memory of the dead "Commoner."

FIRE IN WAYCROSS.

THE GRAND CENTRAL HOTEL DE-STROYED BY FIRE.

The Flames Spread Rapidly from Building to Building—Brave Fight Against the Fire-Losses and Insurance.

WAYCROSS, Ga., December 17,-[Special.] At 8:30 o'clock tonight, an alarm of fire was sounded from the back yard of the Grand Central hotel, a threestory imposing brick structure, located about one hundred yards from the Savannah, Florida and Western passenger depot. The fire was discovered in the kitchen. It was tructed of wood, and was very inflammable. In less time than it takes to tell it, the flames had enveloped the kitchen, and had com-municated to the main building.

Adjoining the hotel was a row of five brick stores, all occupied. Above were two prettily furnished rooms and complete bathrooms occupied by the Young Men's Christian Association, also the offices of physicians. The flames spread rapidly, and soon a roaring mountain of flames enveloped the entire building. The wind was blowing briskly and carried showers and flakes of coal to the eastward, over the thickly settled portion of the city, and toward the passenger depot and estaurant buildings of the Savannah, Florida and Western railroad, which latter building began to smoke and came very near being destroyed.

The heroic efforts of employes and citizens saved the building, and the flames were kept at bay until the danger passed. For a time the eastern part of the town was threatened. The wires in the telegraph office were disconnected Flactric clocks and instruments were moved to a place of safety.

Resolutions on Judge Hammock's Death.
The committee, appointed by the vice president of the board of water commissioners, at a call meeting, held on the 16th of December. 1880, to draft suitable resolutions on the death of Hob. C. C. Hammock, president of said board, beg leave to submit the following report:

For nearly a quarter of a century Judge Hammock has been identified with the city government of Atlanta, holding the most responsible positions that could be conferred upon him by his fellow-citizens, and, ever faithful to his trust, discharged his duties with reedit to himself and honor to his beloved city.

that could be conferred upon him by his reliow-citizens, and, ever faithful to his trust, discharged his duties with credit to himself and honor to his beloved city.

Conscious of the responsibilities attending his various administrations, he entered upon his work with untiring energy and zealous care, and no higher enconfum could be paid his memory than the record he has left in the magic growth of our fair city. On every hand may be seen monuments of his fidelity to his people, and the unerring judgment of his administrations. His work is ended, and to that Heavenly Ruler whom he has so reverenced has he gone to give an account of his stewardship. May he receive that long sought for plaudit of "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of the Lord."

Judge Hammock was ao humble follower of the meek and lowly Nazarene, daily living the lessons taught him by the great teacher, and with child-like faith did he ever strive to follow in His footsteps, always looking to Him for guidance and protection, and in his death the church has lost one of its brightest ornaments. He has passed over the river, and we trust worships at the foot of the great white throne.

One of the most beautiful traits of this good man's character, was his loving devotion to his family; his happiest moments were spent in the company of his wife, daughter and grand children, and always in speaking of them his face would be fairly radiant; but around that charmed circle, whose heart strings have been torn asunder, do we draw the veil.

In conclusion we beg to say that:

Whereas, It hath pleased the aliwise Ruler to remove from our midst our friend and brother, whom we se fondly loved, therefore be it resolved, That inghe doasth of JudgelHammock Atlanta has lost one of its most loyal citizens, the board its honored president, the church one of its most faithful members, and his family a devoted husband and affectionate father and grand-father.

Battly to manage the series of these resolutions be placed upon the minutes of our board, a copy be sent so his family, and that they be polished in THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, and Evening Journal.

PRIMROSE & WEST'S MINSTRELS.

These favorite artists will make their bow next Friday and Saturday, at night and matinee, be-fore their Atlanta friends. They were in Louis-ville last week, and the Courier-Journal thus no-fore their Atlanta friends. They were in Louisville last week, and the Courier-Journal thus noticed their performance:

"Primrose & West's Modern Minstrels opened at Masonic temple last evening before an audience both large and enthusiastic. From the momentthe curtain disclosed a most beautiful first part until it was rung down at the close of the performance the audience was in an aimost continuous roar of laughter. And while some of the stories and jokes were of the old stock, the fresh supply of new ones fully excused the old. Primrose & West's first part is always good, but last evening they introduced many improvements. Joseph Natus, interlocutor and singer, was a feature of the first part that was in keeping with its other good points. The singing of Fred Oakdale is far above the average minstrel work, and bis song, "That is Love," was heartily encored. Of course, clever Lew Dockstader did much toward making the show pleasurable, both as an end man and in his specialy, "Misfits." The burlesque aerial act of Cain and Loreno was the best of its kind, and very funny. A glimpse of old time minstrelsy was introduced in a sketch entitled the "Log Cabin Neighbors," which was well received. "The Imperials," a fancy drill, was an innovation, each participant carrying and flashing an electric light. Altogether, it was one of the best minstrel performances presented here for some time. The great attention given to minor details is one of the commengdable qualities of Primrose & West's performances.

BEST & GOES FARTHEST."

Now that its manufacturers are drawing the attention of the American public to this first and, ever since its invention, the best of all cocoas, it will soon be appreciated here as well as elsewhere all over the world. All that the manufacturers request is simply one trial, or, still better, a comparative test with whatever other cocoa it may be; then VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA itself will convince every one of its great superiority. It is because of this superiority that the English paper Health, says: "Once tried, always used."
To avoid the evil effects of Tea and Coffee, use constantly VAN HOUTEN'S OCCOA, which is a STRENGTHENER of the NERVES and a refreshing and nourishing beverage. [52]

Dangerous Use of Strong Purgatives. DISTED A MEMBER OF THE

Most pills and purgatives which act quickly upon the bowels, irritate and often destroy the mucous coats of the stomach and bowels. Indeed their cathartic action is directly caused by the irritation of the bowels, which they produce. Their action should be soothing and stimulating, instead of irritating. A continued use of such remedies produces chronic inflammation of the stomach and bowels. This often ends in a dangerous disease. The use of the genuine imported Carlsbad Sprudel Salt is highly recommended as an aperient, laxative and diuretic, because its action is due solely to its solvent and stimulating properties. It soothes and allays inflammation, and is, therefore, much preferable to all strong purgatives.

Beware of imitations. Dr. Toboldt's lecture on Carlsbad Sprudel Salt and pamphlets mailed free. Eisner & Mendelson Co., sole agents, 6 Barclay street, New York. top col next reading matter.

Farmers' Sons in the State University. In another column will be found a letter from Chancellor Boggs to Hon. Martin V. Calvin, in which the writer enumerates the farmers' sons now in the University of Georgia, and answers the charge that it is "a rich man's college."

The letter should be read by all classes o our people, and especially by the farmers. Let us summarize a few points in it. Of the 160 students now in the university, seventy seven are farmers' sons, wanting only three of being equal to the whole number of students furnished by all the other classes of our people!

Of the 146 students in the subgraduate classes sixty-eight are farmers' sons, leaving seventy-eight to be divided among the other vocations. With ten more names the sons of farmers in these classes would equal the other members in number.

The farmers' sons are slightly more than 461 per cent of the whole number of undergraduates.

In the law class of fourteen students nine are the sons of farmers!

Another point. Nearly one-half the in come of the university, $46.50 out of every $100 is spent in educating farmers' sons, leaving $53.50 for all the other classes. Does this look like "a rich man's college?"

Chancellor Boggs states that the sons of farmers rank with the highest in intellectual progress, and this has been the record of the university ever since the days of Toombs, Stephens and Hill, who were farmers' sons, But the letter itself must be read. The facts contained in it show that the state university and our farmers are bound together by ties that are not likely to be severed.

Still Contracting the Currency.

The administration and its organs are making a great to-do over the purchase of government bonds by the treasury department in order to relieve the financial stringency in Wall street. For many months now Mr. Windom, the treasurer, has issued calls for bonds that were not due, and, in order to induce holders to part with them, he has ffered a premium as high as 27 cents on the dollar

This has been supposed to be a very fine scheme forgetting money into circulation, and it is claimed, we believe, that these bond purchases have gone very far toward relieving the pressure. At any rate, the treasury scheme seems to be very popular with the speculators and gamblers of Wall street, and whenever they find it difficult to get money for speculative purposes they urge the government to purchase more

Although this has been going on some time, there still seems to be a financial drought in Wall street and elsewhere; the situation is practically unchanged, and there is still a demand for the purchase of bonds by the treasurer. We presume the practice will be continued until even the blind and corrupt republicans discover that the danger which it entails is more important than the temporary relief which results from it.

In the first place, the government is calling in bonds that will not be due for seventeen years, and every cent of premium paid on them is money taken out of the pockets of the people. The treasury scheme is a swindling makeshift in more ways than one. It not only robs the people of the premium paid for the bonds, but it contracts the currency. The largest owners of bonds are the national banks, and these bonds represent national bank notes in circulation. For every bond the banks surrender, they give up a proportionate amount of circulation This fact is well known to the republican administration, to the banks, and to the money-power, and it is for this reason that the purchase of bonds is demanded. The currency must be contracted at all hazards. and the money sharks have seized on a situa tion brought about by the lack of circulation as an excuse for the further wholesale contraction of the currency. They have been successful because they are in partnership with the administration but if a crash comes the republican party ### will be held responsible before the people. Practical Education.

What the Emperor William says about the results of classical education in Germany will apply with almost as much force in this country, although the conditions are not the The educational institutions of Germany still belong to the medieval period, while those of the United States have advanced somewhat; but this advance, it need not be said, in no sense represents the true sense and spirit of our times. There are still people among us who believe that what is called a classical education is a virtue instead of an accomplishment, and, in a great majority of instances, it is unfortunately true that the ambitions student who comes out of college into a world that is not only new to him, but bitterly practical, is compelled to devote a year or two to the work of inloading the lumber that he gathered in his studies. The Emperor William declares that the educational institutions of his country turn out men who know all about the ancients and ancient history, and nothing whatever about modern Germany and German institutions. Our American institutions, on the other hand, turn out young men who know as little as possible about English life and literature, and nothing at all about the cold-blooded requirements of the practical every-day

Yet there has been some improvements i our colleges in this respect. The popularity of the athletic sports which the professors tolerate has brought the students of our northern institutions into close association ns into close association with base and football champions, gentlemanly sluggers, acrobats, sprinters, highjumpers and men of that sort.

And yet there is still a great work before our colleges. The requirements of those who seek an education nowadays are not by any means what they were fifty years ago. The exactions of life and business are more practical and more important than they were then. The majority of young men who go to college do not propose to themselves lives of leisure. They are seeking an education that will fit them for the more practical aims of life, and, sad to say, they are not getting it, or they are getting it in only a measurable degree. Reform in this matter is going on, but it is proceeding very slowly.

The Real Estate Agent. The Richmond State gets it down exactly right when it says that a live real estate agent is worth his weight in gold to his community. A bright and well-informed real estate agent advertises the advantages and re sources of his locality, and attracts immigrants, enterprise and capital. In building up his business he builds up his town, and every dollar he makes counts as dollars for others.

A good deal of first-class talent is em ployed just now in the real estate business. It is an occupation requiring brains and knowledge. Some of the successful men engaged in it rank with our leading states men and journalists in their thorough knowledge of men and affairs, and in their ability to handle and present the facts of the situation in a masterly way. A town with any progressive ambition, without the real estate man, is like the play of "Hamlet" with the prince of Denmark left out.

A False Alarm.

A glance at our telegraphic news columns every day would enable some of our contemporaries to steer clear of many an awkward mistake.

The Macon Telegraph, for instance, is under the impression that cholera in a malignant form is ravaging Guatemala, and it sounds a rather hysterical note of warning. THE CONSTITUTION, as usual, printed the facts of the case a few days ago. Guatemala's scourge is smallpox, and not cholera. This puts a very different face upon the matter

The broad Atlantic still separates us from the Asiatic plague, and with ordinary sanitary regulations and a strict quarantine, the chances are that we can bar it out.

A cholera scare just at this time is out of order, and our Macon contemporary has been misled.

Dilke and Parnell.

When Sir Charles Dilke's immorality w exposed, the offender, although he was rich and distinguished, retired from public life. He knew that he could not fight public opinion.

Parnell has not shown Dilke's judgment. With a majority of his party, the clergy and moral people opposed to him, he professes no penitence, but with fierce fury fights like a wild beast at bay.

It is a useless struggle. The experience of Dilke and Parnell recall this declaration of Junius in one of his remarkable letters: "Whether you rise with the froth or sink with the sediment, there is no rank or condition, however high or however low, that will support a perfectly degraded name!" Dilke knew this to be true, and Parnell will find it out.

VIEWS OF CHANCELLOR BOGGS.

Hon. Martin V. Calvin, House of Repre sentatives, Atlants, Ga.: Dear Sir-On a recent occasion, as we were riding homeward in the same car, you were good enough to suggest that if all the facts were pub-lished with reference to the sons of farmers in the university, the information might be productive of good. The delay in carrying into effect the hint thus given me is due to a very heavy press of engagements. But the census has been carefully taken, class by class, and man by man. The re-sults I will set before you in the form of an open letter, holding mysell ready to give you more privately the list of names on which my summary

1. The whole number of students now present in the university at Athens is 160, of whom just seventy-seven are sons of farmers, wanting, as you see, but three names of being equal to the entire number of students furnished by all other classes of our people put together.

2. In the subgraduate classes there are 146 students, of whom sixty-eight are farmers sons. leaving seventy-eight to be divided among al other vocations and trades. That is to say, in these four undergraduato classes the farmers ons lack only ten of being equal in number to all

3. Viewing the list of names in still another

3. Viewing the list of names in still another light, farmers' sons in the four subgraduate classes are sixty-eight; merchants' sons (including lumber dealers, etc.,) are thirty-one; physicians' sons, eleven; lawyers' sons, ten; railroad men's, five; journalists', four; bankers', three; ministers', three; civil engineers', three; teachers' and professors', three; and one each from millers, insurance agents, machinists, manufacturers and capitalists. Total, 146.

4. By percentage farmers' sons are slightly more than 46½ per cent of the whole number of undergraduates; merchants' sons about 21; physicians' sons about 72; lawyers' sons less than 7-per cent; railroad men's less than 3½; journalists' sons less than 3 per cent; bankers', preachers', engineers', teachers', each about 2 per cer cent; while millers, insurance men, machinists, manufacturers and capitalists furnish for each class considerably less than 1 per cent of the whole number.

5. But the cream of the joke appears when we come to examine the law class. We have now present just fourteen of these embryo lawyers, of whom no less than nine are farmers' sons [1]; our whom no less than nine are farmers' sons(1); our sons of merchants, while one solitary boy is claimed by the lawyers! Thus it appears that the farmers are actually furnishing about 64 percent of our lawyers. I have long observed that the majority of preachers come from that class. But it is significant to see that they produce the majority of lawyers as well as of other learned man. The facts show how inseparably all classes of our people are blended together, and also how foolish and positively wicked it is, for one class to cherish prejudice against another, who are "bone of their bone and flesh of their flesh."

6. If now it be asked how do the farmers' boys compare in intellect and character with others, our records make this reply: In these respects they rank with the highest. At our last commencement the first honor in the bachelor of philosophy course was won by Mr. John Holder, of Jackson county—a farm son. And the first honor in bachelor of arts course was won by Mr. E Moore, of Wilkes county, also a farmer's This is very creditable to the country boys, i much as country schools are so very defect and it should appeal powerfully to every part to provide better schools in which to train bright minds that are scattered about over

Moore, of Wilkes county, also a farmer's son. This is very creditable to the country boys, inasmuch as country schools are so very defective; and it should appeal powerfully to every patriot to provide better schools in which to train the bright minuits that are scattered about over the farms of Georgia. Our records show further that experience warrants us in expecting a very large per cent of first-class intellect in the future from the farmers of Georgia. To name only three of the highest rank among our recent dead. Robert Toombs, Benjamin H. Hill and Alexander H. Stephens, all of them the sons of farmers, were in this university placed upon that path which led them to fame and userulness. And what is true in Georgia is true all over the United States. Clay, Calhoun and Webster, commonly regarded as the three highest names in American politics during the present century, were all of them sons of farmers. The history of our great civil war shows that the leaders on the sides came from the farm.

For facts so persistent and general there must be some adequate cause—a "social law," as the phrase is, which can explain them. There must be something in country life favorable to fostering a love of study. To my mind it seems that the explanation is found, at least in part, in the separation of the country boy not only from many of the vices of town life, but from its pleasures, also, which create expensive tastes and supply other objects of desire. The scarcity of money on our farms supplies conditions favorable to self-denial and labor of all kinds.

And this naturally suggests that the farmers' sons are the very boys most relieved and helped by the free tultion which the legislature established some years ago. I was at first very doubtful as so the wisdom of the policy. But observation and experience have assured me that it is best for Georgia to have her university free. Many of our boys furnish a part of their own support. A large number are compeled to furnish every dollar spent. To these a tuntion fee of $100 every cent that she has ever given to her univer sity.

And now, in conclusion, my dear Mr. Calvin, it asking too much of the farmers' legislature to propose that you cherish an institution that spends within a fraction of the half of her entire income in preparing the sons of their own homor able profession for careers of usefulness and honor? Surely not. Let us build up the common schools by all means, giving them for nine month the best teachers that money can proque. But let none be so narrow minded as to imagine the least conflict between common schools and the university. The two systems form one complete whole, and should be developed at the same time, each to the highes point. As for us, we need more teachers am better buildings and appliances. We are doing our best for the people's aons with the means a er buildings and appliances. We best for the people's sons with the lisposal. But we could do far more ger income. Yours, faithfully,

THE INSURANCE BILL. THE SECRETARY OF THE SOUTH-EASTERN TARIFF ASSOCIATION

Reviews the Provisions of the Bill and Gives, at Length, Reasons Why, in His Opinion, It Should Not Pass. The special from Rome, Ga., in reference to the insurance bill, now pending in the legislature, which appeared in yesterday's Consti-TUTION, was naturally discussed very gener-ally by the insurance people of the city, who freely denied the statements of the several parties quoted therein.

With the idea of learning what the other side has to say in reply to those statements, and of ascertaining what views are entertained by insurance men in regard to the Terrell-Whitfield bil and its effects, if passed, a repentative of THE CONSTITUTION called on Mr. Charles C. Fleming, the secretary of the association, for the information desired.

"What, in the opinion of insurance officials, will be the result of the passage of the bill known as the Terrell-Whitfield bill?" Mr. Fleming was asked.

"The opinions vary somewhat," said Mr. Fleming, "but all agree it will depend mainly on the position taken by the large eastern and foreign insurance companies. When the trus held by the comptroller general of the state to include insurance companies, was passed by the Texas legislature several years ago, each company doing busi-ness in that state promptly adopted the then existing rates on property of all kinds as its wn, and still continues to obtain those rates, It is probable that each company doing business in Geoegia will pursue that plan here in the event the bill in the legislature shall become a law. Should this course not be followed, each company will very likely adopt for itself average rates on the various classes of property, which will secure to the companies about the same aggregate amount of premiums for the total liabilities assumed. "Thus, the operation of such a law would work a great hardship upon those citizens of "From the reports of the comptroller general of the state, anyone may learn that the net profits of all companies doing business in the state for nine years, from 1881 to 1889, inclusive, was $257,396. This includes the business of the Southern Mutual Insurance Company, of Athens. Leave out of the comptroller's report the business of the Southern Mutual, and the figures show that the actual loss to all other companies, doing business in the state for the the state who have spent considerable sums of money in improving their property up to the standard of the association in order to obtain the lowest rates under our system of schedule rating."

"Can you give an illustration of the effect of the system of making such average rates?" he was asked.

"Yes, hundreds of illustrations could be given by going through the published ratings of towns and cities of Georgia, of which there are about 130, and making comparisons, but I will give you just a few instances in Rome and Atlanta. The average rate on brick, metal roof hotels will be about 2.50 all over the state The Armstrong hotel in Rome, now rated at 2.00, would have to pay the same rate as the Central hotel, now rated at 2.35. The average rate on cotton risks will be not less than 3.00, probably 3.50. In this case a company would charge the same rate for cotton in Rounsaville & Bro.'s warehouse, at Rome, now rated at 1.35, as for cotton in warehouse No. 2 of the Rome Compress Company, now rated at 2.35, or in Coker's warehouse, now rated at 2.75.

"To give some instances in Atlanta, the average rate on brick, metal roof store buildings and stocks in Georgia will be not less than 1.50. Messrs. Moore, Marsh & Co., and Messrs. M. F. & J. C. Kiser now get a rate of .90; Messrs. Chamberlin, Johnson & Co. are rated at 1.15, and the present rate on the P. & G. T. Dodd building and stock is 1.50. Assuming that each company will adopt for itself an average rate of 1.50 on risks of the class named, those parties now getting rates of 90 cents and 1.15 would have to pay 1.50 for their insurance, while by reason of the superior character of their risks, they would, under the operations of the rules of the ation, be entitled to lower rates. One of the Inman & Co. cotton warehouses now rates at 1.50, our minimum figure for that class of risks, which was accorded it on account of its having been built to comply with the standard warehouses rates under our schedule, at 2.60. Adair Bros.' warehouses now rate at 1.50, and their cotton sheds at 3.50. Now, in the event the companies are not permitted to rate cotton risks on their several merits and by schedules most equitable manner of rating, each company will decline to write any of the wareases mentioned at less than 3.00, assuming that figure to be the average rate. The hard who have constructed standard buildings to get the lowest rate is perfectly apparent. I could go on and fill columns of with such instances, but you would not give them space I presume."

"What is the reason for the differences i the rates on the cotton warehouses and other insurance risks just mentioned by you?" "The differences in rates are due to the differences in the risks. Those risks, from which the elements of hazard have been most effectually eliminated, naturally secure the cheapest rates. The Rounsaville warehouse in Rome is a more safely constructed risk than the Rome Compress Company's warehous and, for that reason, is given a lower rate.' "Is it the opinion of insurance people that the passage of the bill will be more hurtful to the Georgia local companies than to th large northern and eastern companies?"

"I believe there is no diversity of opinion in that regard. It seems inevitable that they will be the greatest sufferers, especially in case a general war of rates should follow the of the bill, which contingency is possible for a time."

"It seems to be the impression, then, that no reduction in rates will follow, if the bill becomes a law?"

"No; but, on the contrary, it is be lieved that companies, being left free to make their own rates, will put them upon certain classes of risk, such as country dwellings and farm property, as well as on some of the manufacturing risks in the towns and cities. Many of the companies have refused to take risks on the kinds of property named, for the reason that they consider the rates provided by the association too low."

What do you think of the Rome special on the insurance bill as published in this ing's Constitution?" "I have read it and can say, without doing the slightest violence to the cause of truth that I have never read a column of printed matter, in which the statements are more incompatible with the facts. "The space in your paper you say you desire to fill with this interview does not give me the opportunity to answer each charge made by parties in Rome against the association.

elsewhere for a living. The two-mule crop paid the landlord $35 for the cotton crop, 300 bundles of sorry fodder and twenty bushels of corn, which didn't cover the taxes and the insurance on the house rented. There should be a law to compel the contract. Now, the swindler refuses to move until new year, still destroying firewood and running down the place and keeping off a re-liable tenant. Unless there is a law to compel conffacts of this sort, it is useless to rent land hoping to pay interest on the investment. COMMON SENSE. Let me, however, select one or two for specific denial. I deny that Mr. Howell can present any evidence of a promise from this association to make a rate of 1.25 on his warehouses, as they now stand.

He was one of the class that is now fast disappearing from among us—the true-hearted, knightly gentleman of the old school. His old pupils and friends should all show their appreciation of his worth by contributing something to the modest fund that is required to erect a suitable monument to his memory. Yours very truly, R. O. COTTER. will be given, if they will build and equip accordance with our schedules. This Mr. Howell has not chosen to do, and consequently he has not received the lowest rates. Mr. King further states that the association readjusts rates annually and on a larger basis. Here is a short statement by himself of his work at the state convict camps:

ATLANTA, Ga., December 16, 1890.—Editor Constitution: Please allow me space in your paper for a short account of my work among the convicts. There are a great many members of the general assembly of Georgia who say they would like to see my report of the missionary work among the prisoners published; also the ministers of the city have expressed the same desire. Of course all the Christian people would rejoice to hear of the wonderful success of this year.

My work among the prisoners this year has taken more effect than all of my traveling for nineteen years.

There are about twenty-four women in the broom factory. Eighteen of them have professed Christianity. The guard says he has no trouble with them compared to what it was ten months At the Chattahoochee brickyard also there has

The women at the broom factory are begging for a Sunday school to be held in the camp on Sunday, and are begging for women to teach them. I have got some women who say they will go. Of course the salary I am getting will not allow me to pay their expenses on the railroad. Will the state or some good society aid me in this good work? I hope the Christian-hearted people will remember these people who are begging for the name of Jesus to be ringing in the camps on the Sabbath day.

I have not failed a Sunday, rain or shine, visiting the camps. These two camps are stationary as a church and the people that are in them are not able to aid any to extend the good work.

Distinguished ministers of different denominations join in saying that there ought to be more aid, as these two places are permanent and stationary, being camps of the company of lessees. I sometimes get preachers to go with me to assist me in this work. In the month of August last I paid $5.75 out of my pocket for help to carry on this good work. I know several of the prisoners who have reformed since they have come out, and gone to work. Several were white. I have no need to call their names, but I wish them a God's speed. Respectfully,

The Missionary.

So far the people have paid up very promptly, but there will doubtless be, as there always are, a good many delinquents. This list, how-ever, was last year reduced to the minimum through the exertions of Tax Collector Stewart and his assistants, and the number will probably be still further reduced this year. Besides paying their taxes, every voter will be required to register for the coming county

None who fail to pay up all state and county taxes up to date, and register, will be allowed to vote. In previous elections during the year voters could vote who had paid all taxes, including those of 1889, but not 1890.

Now, however, a new tax year begins, and voters must pay up for 1890 in order to be qualified.

The bill as it comes from the committee vides for branch colleges at Dahlonega, Mil-ledgeville, Thomasville, Cuthbert, Hamilton, Forsyth, Waynesboro, Thomson, Sparta, Brunswick, Greenville and Bainbridge.

Branch colleges everywhere.

That was the opening feature of the senate ession after supper.
Senator Lane, who had the floor when the enate adjourned in the afternoon, concluded his argument. Then the new amendments were read. They were for branch colleges at Albany, Jonesboro, Barnesville, McDonough, Jesup, Rome, Sum-merville, Cartersville, Richland, Perry, Americus, Hartwell, Draketown, and other places. Senator Cabaniss called for a division of the question so that the amendments might be voted upon separately. Senator O'Neal spoke in favor of the branch colleges. He dwelt upon the fact that under the common school system the negroes drew out a much larger quota than they contributed, and that this method of establishing branch colleges of the university tended to equalize the matter. Senator Warren spoke in favor of the branch colleges—all of them. Senator Elling on spoke against them Senator Gill spoke in favor of the branch school appropriations, particularly those already established. These, he said, had rights which would be violated by the state if the appropriations were discontinued. Senator Cabaniss spoke again briefly in favor of branch colleges, and withdrew his

Senator Patton was rather against the branch Senator Glenn spoke at some length against them. He believed that the establishment of any branch college was unconstitutional; that the state had no right to discriminate in this way between white and black; that for every branch college established for white children, the negroes would have a constitutional right to demand another. Senator Mitchell made another masterly argument in favor of the branch colleges. "I will support all these amer said doubt constitutionality of establishing a branch college simply by a clause in the appropriation bill. We can make these appropriations for public institutions already established; but a branch college must be established, I think, as all these others were, by special act." Senator Ellington spoke again against the branch schools, and Senator Terrell, chairman of the finance committee, in favor of them. Then Senator Terrell moved to refer that sect on of the bill back to the finance com-

So far as actual new developments are concerned there were none during the day, except the statement of Mr. Murdock, the injured treasurer. To a Constitution reporter he gave his story.

His statement was substantially as follows:

Tuesday was salary day, and about 6 o'clock, after the matinee, he was in his room engaged in putting the money for each member of the apany in envelopes, to be handed them at the close of the performance that night. The salary roll amounted to a little over $1,600 for the week. There were fifty-one salaried people in the company.

He had two one thousand dollar bills and between $600 and $700 in smaller money laying on a small writing table before him. His plan was to put up the salaries as far as his change—the $600 or $700 would go, then get one of the thousand dollar bills changed by Mrs. Meade, the wife of the manager, who had promised him to do so.

Mrs. Meade was at the Kimball, and he was to go there for the change. While engaged in this work, he opened the door in response to several knockings. There were two gentlemen in the hall, who said the represented the East Tennessee railroad, and wanted to see him about transportation.

Mr. Murdock admitted the two men, one of whom sat down at the table opposite to him, and the other taking a seat near the door. The man who sat at the table was large, and the other was rather small.

Mr. Murdock thought they were railroad men with whom Manager Meade had had an appointment. A short conversation ensued, during which he stated that Manager Meade who made all railroad rates, was at the Kimball in his room not feeling very well.

He asked the two men, both of whom introduced themselves, but the name of only the smaller, Mr. Tucker, or Tupper, he could remember, to go with him to the Kimball to see the manager as he had business there anyhow. The men said they would see the manage at the opera house, and then on being told that he was not well and would not be at the opera house, said they would call at his room after Mr. Murdock, after writing them out a pass

Mr. Murdock, after writing them out a pass to the opera house to see the evening performance, proffered his hand to the larger man, bidding him good evening.

The man took Murdock's hand, grasping it with all his strength, and at the same moment the other man attacked him from behind, striking him over the head. He tried to get his pistol out of his hip pocket, but could not. He then uttered the cry heard by Mr. Noeckles, and fell to the floor.

That was the last Mr. Murdock remembered, until he was picked up and laid on the bed, after which he was again unconscious.

He struggled with the man who held him, and his vest and shirt were torn in several places in the melee.

Mr. Murdock never saw either of the men Had it been any other than salary day he says he would not have had more than $50 or $100 about him. Mr. Murdock's statement, it will be seen, implicates two men. In the room there were evidences of a struggle, a chair was turned over, money scattered on the floor, Mr. Murdow's Soothing Syrup for C dren ieething, cures wind colic, diarrheea,&c Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Chil-

By some it was given credence, by others is was not.

There was considerable doubt expressed as to the probability of there having been a genuine robbery.

That it was probable or possible for two men to boldly walk into a prominent hotel and after beating a man to unconsciousness in his own room, rob him of over $2,000, almost within arm's reach of other guests of the house, then turn about and escape from the building without anybody having set eyes on them, seemed a little startling to say the least, and caused much talk.

All these circumstances were talked about, and the general impression was that the affair was one that would require a thorough investigation to clear up. Boston Symphony Orchestral Club. Opera house tonight. Don't fail to hear it.

THE LESSEES TODAY.

THEY WILL HOLD AN IMPORTANT MEETING THIS MORNING.

el Cole and Mr. Baxter Here-Others

octed Today-The State Road Question in the House. The lessees of the State road will hold an important meeting today. Prominent gentlemen from the north and east will be here representing either their own holdings in the lease company or as the representatives of the stockholders. Were there no complications growing out of the relations of the lease company to the state, this meeting would probably be the last meeting of the lessees.

Under the present state of affairs, however, nothing seems certain. There will, in all probability, be many other meetings before the questions at issue are settled.

Colonel G. W. Cole, of Nashville, one of the lessees, arrived yesterday. Another prominent Nashville citizen, who is in Atlanta, is Mr. Ed Baxter, attorney for the Louisville and Nashville. Then Major Stahlman, too, is here. last night, and a number of other gentlemen interested in the property, will be on hand. The meeting is called for at the Kimball, but with this bad weather, it is probable that Senator Brown's home will be decided upon.

All the questions bearing upon the lease will be discussed, and the policy of the lease company will be determined upon.

The Zachry resolution came to the house from the senate yesterday and was read the first time and turned over to the Western and Atlantic railroad committee.

There was a meeting of the committee immediately afterwards and the resolution was pressed their views of the matter. Some were in favor of taking immediate action upon the matter, some were in fa-vor of leaving it for the governor to do, and some thought it a matter of business that could easily be decided by the house in brought up for debate in the house on Friday. Some Interesting Pointers.

A Constitution reporter approached a onspicuous member of the Western and Atlantic committee yesterday who has taken a prominent stand on the betterments question in the house this session, and asked him what he thought of the situation. He replied: "I anticipate no trouble. There is no war between the lessees and the state, no occasion for one, and there will be none. "Do you think the lessees will give up the road without first securing a settlement with "The lessees have been dealing with the state long enough to know that Georgia is not a robber; that she will pay if she owes and wants nothing that is not hers."

"But it is a matter of business, and will not the lessees do what is to their interest?" "They should not if it is wrong. The state has dealt liberally with them and they cannot afford to resort to revolutionary measures upon the presumption that the legislature will treat them unfairly."

Suppose they run off all the rolling stock, what will the legislature do?"

"I do not believe they will do what is dis-honorable. If they do this we will sue on their bond and recover what is due us. 'I have heard that there was a doubt as to the validity of the bond, but that fact places the state where it can rely upon the honor of

What do you mean by that?" "I mean that during all these years that this doubt as to the validity of the bond has been expressed the state has had such im-plicit confidence in the lessees that it did not even require that the bond be made valid but trusted to the honor of the lessees to do right. After this would it not come in poor taste for them to say in advance of the time for the state to act that the state would be dishonorstate to act that the state would be dishonorable and proceed to play a grab game?"

"Suppose, however, that at the expiration of the lease the lessees resort to revolutionary methods, and try to keep possession of the road; what then?"

"That is not a supposable case. This is not a savage country. The Louisville and Nashville people and Governor Brown, who own this lease, own large interests in Georgia, which they expect the state to protect, and it is not likely that either of them will either impeach the honor of the state or declare war upon her."

"But suppose they do; won't it defeat the new lease if the state can't deliver on the day

"No, it does not. It has often been so stated, but that would not be the case."
"Suppose the new lessees say you have the thing in such a fix we won't take the road, you can't comply literally with your contract, and we are off; what is the position of the state then?"

and we are off; what is the position of the state then?"

"Well, we have still got the Western and Atlantic railroad. That is worth a mint, and we, have got $500,000 worth of bonds deposited with the state by the new lessees, and they would be in the vault of the state. It must not be forgotten that the new lessees own almost all the old lease, and the old and new are virtually the same. Hence, no trouble can be given unless the new lessees cause it, and they will not be allowed to break up the contract, even if they can, and then recover their bonds."

"What is the disposition of this general assembly towards the lessees claims, as compared with the last?"

"It is decidedly more liberal. There is no prejudice. Each member seems willing to a lear the evidence and do what is right. When the matter is settled by this general assembly no fair-minded man will question the convictions of the conclusion reached. We cannot afford to do anything that will seem unfair, for it would damage the credit and stand victions of the conclusion reached. We cannot afford to do anything that will seem unfair, for it would damage the credit and standing of the state."

"Who seems to be leading the opposition to the claims of the lessees?"

"There is no one fighting the lessees. Every member I have seen is anxious to do the fair thing. The only thing I know which has tended to damage the claims of the lessees is that the lessees seem to fear the state will do something dishonorable, and have heretofore rather threatened the state. This is unwise and unnecessary, and has done more than all else to injure the case of the lessees."

is just the condition of every lady in Atlanta now - with special reference to Christmas

Gentlemen should not hesitate long in selecting the proper thing, a Stevens's watch, for instance. These are made up in various styles, some enameled with flowers and leaves in colors, others mounted with diamonds. Think of it, a solid gold watch with diamond solitaire only $37.50. As for engraved or other fancy styles of Stevens's watches, they can be obtained in solid gold from $20 up. In the matter of diamonds we simply exhibit the largest stock in Atlanta, and quote the lowest prices for pure stones. We have a large variety of cheaper articles,

NEW YORK, December 17.—London prices were tomewhat firmer this morning, but the market here has been so dull and featureless as to leave but little to be chronicled. The tendency was toward better prices, but little progress was made owing to the dull-iess.

It is difficult to predict what the immediate future will bring forth, but we are inclined to the view that if easy money continues to prevail, traders will find nore courage and the market score an advance, espe-dially so if some tangible progress is made in the eiforts of the railroad presidents to secure a lasting pt ace and an investment demand for bonds springs up, which easier money is almost certain to bring about. In the meanwhile the financial situation, as fair as the commercial world is concerned, is rapidly becoming clearer, and if, after the first of the year, commercial failure are not abnormally heavy, it will on the silver question, though we doubt that the president would sanction a more radical measure than we now have. The market closed strong at about the best prices of the day, with a decidedly firm under Hubbiard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORIC, December 17.—[Special.]—Our market has been practically cut off from communication with the south todry by the severe storm which interrupted the telegraph service. Foreign advices are practically mechanged, the small decline made upon the offering activening having been recovered at the close of the lay, except upon the near positions, which appear to mafer from the fear of tighter money abread. Our advices state i hat Manchester is doing a fair business, especially for rarns, though cloth manufacturers are not doing so well as the spianters who are well under contract. Rather more cotton appears to be pointing towards. New York for delivery upon January sales, and, while the premium paid for February delivery would show a handsome profit, the larger houses in the trade do not appear at all anxious to carry over the increasing stock at even the existing differences. A very dull session, with a tendency on the part of all concerned to await further developments, is a fair resume of the market; and although receipts are full, they have exerted no influence upon the market.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, December 17—There was a slight improvement in the tone of the wheat market when trading commenced. The first sales were at $1 for May, and the market maintained its strength until it closed, and the trading price, as the bell tapped, was 100½, which was the hignest price of the day, with an easy tone.

In the corn pit about noon there was an inquiry for *In the corn pit about noon there was an inquiry for December. No one appeared to have any for sale, and buyers being urgent, oftered in quick succession 53, 53; 54, 543, 55 and 56c before orders, which apparently were very pressing, could be filled. Meanwhile May had started at 53; c, or 3; c better than it closed yesterday. The movement in December stiffened it up and it rapidly improved in price until 54; c was paid, and prices 6id not, after once passing 5tc, get below it again, and in the last fay minutes it made further advance to 54; c, and closed stendy, with buyers at 54; c. Perhaps not over 50,000 bushels of corn for December changed hands altogether, but it produced a very yeasty effect. Closing prices today were 1 cent higher than at corresponding time yesterday.

There was a slight trade in oats, the closing being visions started at about the prices of the day be Provisions started at about the prices of the day be-fore. The tendency was downward during the fore-noon, but owing to the strength developed in the grain markets, there was a rally later, and prices for pork showed a moderate advance over those at correspond-ing time the day before.

Lard and ribs were virtually unchanged from yester-day's prices as trading ceased.

day's prices as trading ceased.

Heavy receipts of hogs were a depressing feature, and the price reported from the yards was maintained at and below former level.

a period of dullness, grain gradually became strong and advanced about 1 cent per bushel, closing at highest easy feeling among the few unfortunate shorts. This feeling also prevailed among some of the larger sellers for May delivery, causing a strong market, closing about at the highest point. All the offers of cash wheat about at the highest point. All the offers of cash wheat at Minneapolis were quickly absorbed at about ½ to 1 cent per bushel higher than yesterday, which is a strong feature in the legitimate situation. The millers of Minneapolis are almost unanimous in their belief of higher prices in the spring. They claim that the stocks are fast being absorbed. The shipments of last week-3,058,000 bushels of wheat from India and Battic ports—caused some of our local speculators, who were favorable to the bull side of wheat, to hesitate about buying in the early part of the day, but some of our big buying in the early part of the day, but some of our big shorts were only too giad to improve the opportunity to cover their outstanding contracts, thus causing a very strong market. Exports of wheat and flour were quite liberal today. Brighstreet figures the stock of wheat east of the Rockies as an increase of 585,000 bushels for the week. A somewhat larger increass was

Oats were anceived by the advanced in that cereal also.

Provisions are still quiet; prices not changed much, but the market for lard and ribs, especially the latter, to eather strong.

Overcoming Prejudice. Overcoming Prejudice.

Prejudice is a sad trait of human nature. A peson whose mind is bent on bias does himself geat injustice. Said a sick man, whose blood seemed on fire from the effects of blood poison, "Ican't help my prejudice; I have tried half adoren remedies, and they did me no good. I believe all blood purifiers are humbugs." "Do portelieve all physicians are humbugs, too?" asted the writer. "Yes, for I have tried three different doctors, and only grew worse under their treatment. I have made up my mind my use is incurable and death inevitable." Howtheir treatment. I have made up my mind my mee's incurable and death inevitable." However, the writer, who was a friend of the sufaing individual, at last succeeded in overnoming his prejudice and persuaded him to five Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla a trial. He minienced its use with no faith at all, but mod effects soon followed, and its continuance tought complete relief. Reader, go thou and a likewise.—Independence Press.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from broughtist hat we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skifful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine, saying he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This indisputable evidence of the great merit of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has given me unbounded confidence in the preparation, and I recommend it to my customers, knowing it cannot disappoint them."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cured me of a bad cough and my partner of bronchitis. I know of numerous cases in which this preparation has proved very beneficial in families of so that the medicine is known among them as 'the consoler of the afflicted.'"—Jaime Rufus Vidal, San Cristobel, San Domingo.

"A short time ago, I was taken with a severe attack of bronchitis. The remedies ordinarily used in such cases failed to give me relief. Almost in despair of ever finding anything to cure me, I hought a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was helped from the first dose, I had not finished one bottle before the disease left me, and my throat and lungs were as sound as ever."—Geo. SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF SHORT - HAND 18 E. HUNTER ST., ATLANTA, GA.
We have a special teacher for our Typowriting Department. We teach everything necessary to a practical writer. Our pupils read their notes with ease. Our system (Graham's) is the most popular in the United States. We have had from one to three applications daily, for competent stenographers. We have pupils located in all parts of the United States and in Mexico. Demand for shorthand writers incroasing continuously. We have the most, elegant and commodious quarters in the south.
Classes day and night. We make no charge for obtaining positions for our pupils. Send writing Department.

CRICHTON'S Short-hand School 49 Whitehall St., Atlanta.

If you want to learn shorthand, the first thing to be done is to select a school; one that has some standing; remembering always, that idle boasts are easily made, but teaching shorthand is an art, a science, a business.

Examine carefully into the claims of teachers and selectione as carefully as you would a physician. cian.

Our catalogue will be sent free to any address, and if we do not prove that we are capable of meeting your requirements you have lost nothing whatever.

as It Stands-Mr. Fleming Has a Word to Say The Twitty bill passed the senate yesterday morning—the simon pure, unamended, original bill, exactly as the house left it, exactly as it was first introduced.

The effect of this is that the bill does not go back to the house, as it must have done had there been any amendment in the senate. o up yesterday under the head of unfinished business: and upon it Senator Ellington immediately called for the previous question, which was sustained. This cut off the introduction of new amendments, and brought the senate to a vote on the amendments already pending.

First, those recommended by the agricultural committee. These had been offered by the author of the bill.

They were lost overwhelmingly. Then two or three proposed amendments

Senator Beck insisted on having his amend ment voted upon. It was lost-31 to 8. Senator Callaway had a vote on his amendnent. It was lost, of course-28 to 12. That disposed of all amendments, leaving the naked bill.

It was a test, and the vote stood:

Ayes—Messrs. Beard, Beck, Bennett, Boyd, Culpepper, Eason, Ellington, Gill, Golden, Harp, Hill, Hodges, Irvine, Johnston, Lane, Lanier, Nunnally, Patton, Smith, sixth; Smith, twenty-eighth;
Strickland, Tatum, Terrell, Vincent, Walker—25.
Nays—Messrs. Calaniss, Callaway, Culver,
Flynt, Harlan, Johnson, Lamb, McRae, Mullis,
O'Neal, Warren, Williams, Witcher, Zachry—14.

THE FILL AS PASSED. It was a test, and the vote stood:

O'Neal, Warren, Williams, Witcher, Zachry—14.
THE BILL AS PASSED.
This is the bill—
To be entitled an act to declare all obligations to pay attorney's fees, in addition to the interest specified therein, upon any note or other evidences of indebtedness, void and of no effect, and to prohibit the collection of the same, and for other purposes.

for other purposes.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the general assem-Section I. Be it enacted by the general assembly of Georgia, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same. That from and after the passage of this act, all obligations to pay attorney fees upon any note or other evidences of indebtedness, in addition to the rate of interest specified therein, is hereby declared to be absolutely void, and no court shall have power to enforce such contract and agreement to pay such attorney fees, unless a plea or pleas be filed by the defendant, and not sustained.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted by authority afore-said. That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this act be, and the same are, hereby re-

That leaves the bill in the hands of the governor. His signature will make it a law on the statute books; his veto would kill it. Perhaps the happiest man in the senate yes terday was Mr. Ellington, of the twenty-ninth. He has had charge of the measure in the enate, and to him a great deal of the credit is due for its ultimate passage. He has proven himself, in the fight on the bill, one of the practical parliamentarians in the legislature. WHAT WILL BE THE END

Will the senate reconsider its action and put the bill in the shape advocated by the conservative men of the opposition, or will they put upon the shoulders of the governor the responsibility of saying whether this shall or shall not become a law?

A strong effort will be made to have this action reconsidered today, but the fate of such an effort is uncertain.

Mr. Fleming's Views. Mr. Fleming, of Richmond, has been the foremost figure in the fight on the bill and there has been no attempt to answer some of the strong arguments he has advanced. Mr. Fleming was asked yesterday what he thought of the present situation.

"I consider the situation very serious," he said in reply. "The action of the senate was disappointing and much to be deplored. You see, the agricultural committee, to whom the bill was referred, had by unanimous action, as I am informed, amended the bill by allowing the creditor a low scale of charges for attorney's fees, and the business interests of the state were relying implicitly upon that promise of partial protection. But the committee, or at least some of its most active members, abandoned their own amendment, and put the bill through in its original, naked deformity. nator Zachry, chairman of the committee, voted against the bill after the amendment was stricken off, but it seems that he was flanked by some other leader on the committee. The cause of this change of plan is said to be due to the fact that on yesterday some of the farmer senators became angered at the action of some of the lawyers who justly felt offended at the proposed amendment, and this morning these farmer senators de-cided to punish the lawyers by putting through the original bill without amendment. They did not see that they were playing into the hands of the lawyers, many of whom preferred the bill in that shape if they could not get a liberal amendment. The passage of this bill is a stupendous piece of financial folly."

"Then you have not changed your views?" "Not at all. I am anxious to be put squarely on record against it. The amendment proposed in the house would have corrected all existing evils and harmed nobody. Twitty is no doubt proud of his bill, but the people of Georgia will soon feel the weight of people of Georgia will soon feel the weight of its folly, and force a repeal. When the presi-dent signed the tariff bill, McKinley thought he had the world in a swing, but he soon saw his mistake, or the people did. One of the peculiar features of the fight over this bill was that the supporters of the bill made practically no attempt or pretense of answering the arguments offered against it. They just voted, and voted and voted for it.

"It is unfortunate for the state when a question of such great public concern is setthed in any other way than by public debate. The farmers and lawyers have just voted a tax of $1,200,000 for common schools, and now the farmers give a stinging blow to the business interests of the state, which in the main have to bear the burden of that tax. Moreover, that blow is dealt at a most inopportune time, when we are in the crisis of a

"Those who opposed this bill will not have to wait long for their vindication. There has already been a decided change of opinion among the members of the house, and on a fair hearing I do not believe it could be now forced to a passage.'
